GRANT MONEY: The Urban Development Institute and its members have raised $109,000 as seed money for the UDI Development Industry Endowment at BCIT, to support future developers, professionals and skilled workers. The endowment will provide five awards worth $1,000 each to BCIT students intending to pursue careers in real estate and development.

GREEN LIVING: If developer Columbia National Investments Ltd. has their way, the Sunshine Coast's Seaside Park will soon be home to a new environmentally sensitive resort-style community. Building could begin as early as 2007 on the 309-acre property near Port Mellon. It's a 10-minute drive to Langdale Ferry Terminal.

PARTNERING IT:

Find out how public-private partnerships can work in Vancouver with UDI's guests Rob Bennett, founder of Portland's G/Rated Green Building program and Dennis Wilde, senior project manager with one of America's largest green development firms, from noon to 1:30 p.m. August 10 at Robson Square Theatre. A complementary lunch is available.
